Court Chatter Highlights Preparations For Persia's Birthday Bash

PERSEPOLIS, Iran (AP) — the desert for the Birthday bash As their Imperial Majesties the celebrating the 2,500th an-Shah of Iran and Empress Farah took up residence here Monday in the ancient capital of Persia, the whole kingdom seemed to buzz with excited court chatter and delicious name dropping.

Almost every hour from here on out a steady stream of kings and presidents and sultans and cardinals and oodles of other heads of state and royal persons will be jetting into the glittering tent city that the House of Jensen, the fashionable Paris designers, caused to bloom in niversay of the Persian Empire.

The juiciest bits of royal chitchat had to do with who was not coming and why. It was rumored for instance, that President George Pompidou passed up the Shah's gala in favor of his prime minister because he just couldn't see himself getting to the back of the caviar line behind all those kings and crown princes.

Not true perhaps—the desert is famous for mirages-but there was another delicious bit to show up with an official party of 120 and the Shah turning him down. Instead the United States fielded a smaller team headed by Vice President Agnew who

Release Of N. Viet POW Raises Cautious Hopes

SAIGON (AP) — The release of a North Vietnamese war prisoner Monday raised cautious hope for the freeing of more U.S. prisoners by the ene-

The U.S. Embassy said a North Vietnamese lieutenant was freed in Cambodia as a "reciprocal gesture" for the return on Friday of an American Army sergeant.

The U.S. statement said the release of the lieutenant was made "in response to indications that the enemy would welcome such a release at a given time and place.'

The statement gave no clue as to these "indications" and turned aside all questions related to the unusual prisoner exchange, marking the first time since 1969 an American captive was set free.

Embassy spokesmen went to lengths to discourage further discussion by newsmen on grounds it could jeopardize efforts to obtain the release of additional Americans.

The Embassy statement said: We have no assurance wha soever at present that this reciprocal gesture will lead to the release of additional American prisoners. That, however, is the goal toward which we are working.'

The reference to the "given time and place" indicated that the Americans had communicated with the Communist command on the freeing of POWs since Staff Sgt. John C. Sexton Jr., 23, of Warren, Mich.,

transportation contract. Henry S. Petersen reported that a regular contract is required to relieve Lottsville-Sugar Grove overloading and will also increase state reimbursement from 25 per cent to full payment

Supplemental pupil transportation contracts were approved for transportation of pupils on approximately 17 days when classes will recess at 11 for teacher in-service training. The cost was approved at $6,200. With reimbursement, the final cost to the district will be $2,400. The cash balance reported by the treasurer of $954,973.70 did not reflect tax receipts between the Sept. 20 date of his report and the final discount date of Sept. 30. Bills were approved for $441,971.25, some $270,000 of which was to school authorities for school buildings recently constructed.

Bills were approved for payment amounting to $38,570.20 for the South Street School and $225,573.07 for the vo-tech school

In approving the payment of $35,209.77 in bills for the lunch program, several members asked whether or not reimbursement this year was less than last year. Howard Thompson, superintendent of schools, said that the reimbursement rate is about the same. He explained, however. that in an effort to get greater participation in the lunch program an a la carte program is being introduced at some of the schools

Thompson said that it is hoped students will be attracted to the school lunch program by having a choice rather than having to take the Type A lunch provided. The district would lose its federal reimbursement if it dropped the Type A program.

Thompson said that much of the problem with lunch program costs is that it requires almost as much time and effort to prepare lunches for 100 students as it does for 500

Mansfield Calls For Fewer U.S. Forces In Mediterranean

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield called Monday night for a sharp reduction in U.S. naval forces in the Mediterranean and their replacement by a multinational fleet of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) countries.

The Montana Democrat also renewed his call for a 50 per cent reduction in the 300,000man U.S. European force, declaring that if the executive branch fails to do so he will constinue to seek action in Congress.

Mansfield's remarks were in a speech prepared for delivery at Indiana University of Penn-

Center st. address. The child reportedly was injured during the evening of Sept. 28 and was taken to Union City Hospital where he died two days later. Erie County coroner Merle Wood attributed death to shock due to multiple injuries. Witnesses at the hospital said the boy's eyes were black and swollen and that there were numerous other marks on the body. An autopsy was performed the following day at Hamot Medical Center, but results have not yet been released. According to district attorney

Michael Palmisano, the boy's mother was not at home at the time of the beating. When she returned a short time later, she rushed him to the hospital. She told police that he had fallen off a couch onto a toy rifle. Palmisano would not comment on reports that Swan had been drinking prior to the incident He said that the manslaughter charge was filed with the general charge of manslaughter.

The charges against Leonard Michael Hinchliffe, 39, came less than three weeks after Britain expelled 105 alleged Soviet spies and announced that a Russian trade official had defected and given the British information on spy operations.

Hinchliffe was the fourth person charged under Britain's Official Secrets Act since then.

It was not known if his case was connected with the Soviet expulsion and defection. Officials said his case was not linked with that of three others, under the secrets act, which came up for a preliminary hearing Monday.

U.S. Received Assurances Of Well-Being Of Mao

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States received strong assurances on the well-being of Communist China's party chairman Mao Tse-tung before his meeting Friday with Emperor Haile Salassie of Ethiopia, but there is only silence on the fitness of his designated successor, the ailing minister of defense Lin Piao.

Reports that Lin, who has long suffered from tuberculosis. is either dead or dying are being treated with great caution in official circles here. But speculation persists that the slight general who masterminded Korean War strategy two decades ago is playing some central role in the drama of succession now thought to be taking place inside the Forbid-result of the visit of Dr. Henry Kissinger, Presidential adviser on national security affairs and his staff of advisers. It is reported that the four-day Kissinger visit will be concluded before the China debate on representation gets underway on Oct. 18.

Lin has not made a public appearance since last June. Three chiefs of the military service— Huang Yung-sheng of the army, Wu Fa-hsein of the air force and Li Tso-p'eng of the Navy have not been seen in more than one month. The army and navy chiefs, however, were shown on a television film strip shown recently in Peking, but the announcer noted that the film had been made last July.

Our grandmothers had little difficulty meeting the nutritional needs of their families back in the good old days when every one o gobbled up huge servings of meat and potatoes and the dining table groaned under an overload of goodies that surely contained a wealth of minerals and vitamins required in the functioning of the buman body. Aunt Effie was as fat as a prize calf but consumed huge quantities of table fare without a thought of calories, which, of course, she had never heard of. While Uncle Al, at a robust 250 pounds, must have equaled his body weight annually in the consumption of "saturated" o animal fats.

Ah, but that was back in the good old days before nutritional fads, calorie counting, cholesterol 🛡 awareness, 👚 mineral requirements, and the calculated ≥ diet appeared on the scene. And, most importantly, before the square meal three times a day custom was obliterated by a weight-conscious, scurrying population with neither time nor desire for more than martinispiked snacks.

These changes in the eating pattern, along with the special food demands they have crated, have progressively increased the pressure on "the feeder of the flock" to broaden her knowledge of nutritional values. No simple matter in this day and age, as any courage lawlessness in the south.

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

The problem of William Kunstler extends now beyond the bounds of legal propriety. But pause there for a minute.

William Kunstler is a practising lawyer, and the question before the house is -- ought he to be permitted to practise law? The general assumption is: why not, it's a free country, isn't it? To which the answer is that we are a country that seeks to be free, but in order to achieve that objective, it is required that we enforce certain rules, for instance thou shalt not murder, thou shalt not steal. In order to enforce those laws, we set up a court system. That system depends, for its effective functioning, on the behavior of people who play a role in it - judge, prosecutor, defense counsel, juror.

You can make an abstract case for permitting anybody to practise medicine provided that person's client knows full well that he is talking to somebody who never went through medical school. Because the transaction affects, alone, the client himself. But where a trial is concerned, the defense attorney is only one of the moving parts. If he orbits about totally out of control, the result is that the coordination necessary to the approximation of justice is simply impossible. That's why there are rules for lawyers. Such rules as William Kunstler, given to contumely in the courtroom, and to the disparagement of judges and indeed of the system, in that acid-rock rhetoric which is his trademark, contributes to chaos in the courtroom.

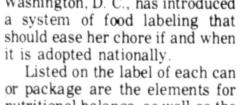

The reason (the lawyers will tell you this discreetly) that they don't go ahead and disbar him is not because he hasn't violated the canons of the profession, but because they fear to make a martyr out of him. A prudential judgment. The trouble with it is that, widely applied, it is a ticket to immunity. Don't go after the Mafia boss, or you will make him a martyr in the

WASHINGTON--TOP SECRET MEMORANDUM:

FROM: Wang Po -- anti-imperialist Secret Agent 655 (code name Egg Roll), Washington, D.C.

TO: Chu Ping Pi, Political Bureau, SUBJECT: Situation in the United States at present time vis-a-vis Nixon's 1--There is great confusion here in Washington concerning who is in charge of the American government. President Nixon has been photographed in public and, to prove he was in good health, the capitalist newspapers showed him greeting Emperor Hirohito in Alaska.

2--The big mystery is what has happened to Vice President Spiro Agnew. He has not been photographed with President Nixon for six months. The man who has seemed to replace Agnew in power is the secretary of the treasury, John Connally, who always seems to be at Nixon's side.

3--Another mystery which has most U.S.-watchers confused is that the Supreme Court is now down to seven members. Nixon has promised to appoint two more members but so far he has been unable to find anyone with the same ideological philosophy. This has led many observers to believe that there is a power struggle going on in the Department of Justice between the moderates and Martha Mitchell. Martha Mitchell still seems to wield great influence in the government and some believe she is the real power behind the attorney general. 4--Walter Hickel, the former secretary of the interior, is no longer under house arrest in Alaska

Nixon met with him recently, indicating a softening of a hard-line stand he took six months ago. In a speech to the Veterans of Foreign Wars the President said, "Let a thousand flowers bloom," which indicated the Nixon government would welcome advice. But two days later the party line changed again, when Spiro started his War on Inflation.

Agnew told a Republican fund-raising dinner in Texas that if there was any criticism of the President he would personally purge the dissidents.

5--One of the reasons for the confusion in Washington is that the United States is in a serious economic condition and a wage-price freeze has been in effect, which has caused a great deal of bitterness among the workers. The campaign to produce more for Richard Nixon has not succeeded, and few people now are waving their Little Red Books with the "Thoughts of Nixon" at chamber of commerce rallies.

6--Postmaster General Blount has called for an economic boycott against France because France won't help the United States solve its drug problem. The U.S. government said it didn't agree with the postmaster general so there is a power struggle going on there. No one can predict the outcome but Walter Hickel has invited the postmaster general to live with him in Alaska.

7-The opposition party is still in disarray although the Democrats are hoping for a Cultural Revolution in 1972.

8--If you are confused in Peking as to what is going on in Washington, so are most of the American people. The Washington Senators have been exiled to Texas. This has caused great speculation in diplomatic circles as to who will be the next to go.

9--As for Henry Kissinger's visit to Peking next week, my advice is to meet with him and try to have him explain what the political situation is in the United States. If he can't come up with satisfactory answers, I would suggest that Chou En-lai call off the meeting with Nixon. It would be a mistake to talk to Nixon while there is so much chaos in the United States.

10--I will need some more money. You can't believe the prices since Nixon

THE PENNSYLVANIA STORY

The Youth Impact

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG -- The forthcoming youth vote in next month's general election is kicking up more controversy and interest across Pennsylvania than even the election races themselves.

Statewide there will be contests for two State Supreme Court seats but from a standpoint of pure political interest the laurel goes to the race for mayor of Philadelphia where Frank Rizzo, a Democrat, is contesting Republican Thatcher Longstreth.

However, more and more discussion is being raised by the anticipated impact (or lack of it) that will be made in the November 2 balloting by the half-million young Pennsylvanians who will be eligible to vote for the first time.

And more specifically, the impact on the local scene that may be generated by college students who will be allowed to vote on campus instead of having to go back home or mail in absentee ballot.

On balance, Democrats rather than Republicans are delighted over the turn of events in Pennsylvania in the wake of the 26th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution which gives 18-to-20 year-olds the right to Registration in Penn's Woods has been running about three and even four-to-one in favor of the Democratic Party. The silence from State GOP brass on this score has been deafening, apparently on the theory that the less said the better. Biggest hoopla of the youth vote, of course, was that raised over the Shapp Administration's quick and strenuous (and successful) efforts to give Sally Co-ed and Carl Campus the green light to vote on campus instead of at home or by mail.

In line with this, State Attorney General J. Shane Creamer waged a successful opinion fight to extend voter registration

(for college students only, mind you) with

Democrat Commonwealth

fellow

Secretary C. DeLores Tucker cheering every step of his way.

College town Republican leaders are getting somewhat anxious regarding this transient vote. (Penn State, for example has 27,500 on campus, nearly equal to the registration in its home Centre County).

Yet despite the attention given to this issue and despite the extended registration (to college students only, remember) first "returns" on the registration drive indicate a relatively light effort to get on the voting rolls.

Some wizened politicos see this as a straw in the wind, pointing to light impact by college voters at the local level in the election itself. But there could be surprises. Those who object most strenuously to on-campus voting point to what they term the "rootlessness" of the new, young voters. These veteran college-town politicos also fear that the collegians could, through mischief or design, rather than concern, swing the tide for additional local taxation via the ballot box. Then, sheepskin in hand, the college voter leaves his "home" (either the dorm or a boarding house several miles away) and hits the road. But the higher taxes imposed partly via his vote stays behind to the chagrin of the local folks!

For this reason (and a good many others) there is some talk to consider setting up Pennsylvania's election machinery in such a fashion that if college students can vote on campus, they be permitted to vote only for national and statewide elections. If they are interested in voting in local contests in their hometowns, then the collegians could cast their ballots via the U.S. Mails, under this new thinking.

November 2 may provide a clue -- and perhaps an inkling of things to come.

OBSERVER Maltese Turkey Buzzard By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON -- If only they had waited 50 years to invent the private eye - -

I was seated at my desk on the 47th floor of the G.M. Building hoping my press agent wouldn't phone and trying to figure out who I was when Daisy, my curvaceous secretary, stuck her head in the door and said a Miss Bunsenburner was outside demanding to see me and wouldn't take no for an answer.

"Could she be an internal revenue agent? I asked.

'Not with a figure like she's got, Boss,' Daisy quipped. I told Daisy to quit calling me "Boss."

or she was through

"Try telling that to the union, Boss." she said

I told her I had a right to have some class on my office staff, to go along with my Boukhara rug and Andy Warhol over the sofa, and I was willing to take on the union grievance committee to get it. I pointed out that the labor market was loaded with English secretaries who were plenty curvaceous. Daisy shut my mouth with a kiss. I knew I could never fire her. She was too much like a sister, only better.

I asked her why I couldn't remember who I was. She said I had been viciously beaten and kicked in the head two days before and dumped in the ocean off Laguna with tire irons tied to my wisdom

'Who did it?'' I asked. "Was it the internal revenue?

Before she could answer, a broad wrapped in more fur than a grizzly bear slipped into the office. In fact, I thought she was a grizzly bear until I noticed the cute little pearl-handled 22 nestled in one

"If you're from internal revenue," I said hoping I could stall her long enough to get my right hook into her solar plexus, 'you're wasting your time. I told you once and I'll tell you again: my fee is a lousy $25 a day and expenses, just like I've been reporting.

'Get out,'' she told Daisy, "I want to be alone with Mr. Spad. I watched her like a hawk. She watched me like a falcon. I felt like something, but couldn't think what. I made a mental note to have my ghost writer work me up a few new similes

"So," she purred when Daisy had closed the door behind her, "you are the great Sam Spad about whom I have heard so much

I told her she had it all wrong, that I couldn't remember who I was just then but didn't think I was a Spad, or for that matter, a Nieuport, or a Camel. Her spoiled rich girl's pout became surly. 'That's a very strained joke," she murmured. "I came here because I heard you were one of the really great private eves. but the really great private eyes don't make fussy little jokes about obscure airplanes of World War I.'

Her fur coat had fallen open and I glommed a figure that would have raised the office temperature five degrees if the thermostats on the sensitive airconditioning system had not been right on

I suddenly felt like putty in my hands, and when she saw that she had me gaping she lost interest in the pistol just long enough for me to lav a stiff left jab right in her midsection and cross with a smash to the jaw that sent her reeling into my Andy Warhol

Bouncing off the soup can, she grabbed my right wrist, bent the forearm back against the joint, gave me a kick that sent waves of pain radiating from the 47th floor down into the underground parking garage and threw me over her shoulder.

When I came to she had me propped on the sofa and was going through my desk. She was something to see, all right, and I wanted to marry her, even though I knew I'd have to send her to prison first for killing somebody if I couldn't break her of hitting men who tried to take away her pistols

I didn't tell her that, though. What I told her was that I thought she ought to start wearing a brassiere, and get married, and settle down, and start doing the dishes instead of breaking up the G.M. Building. She said I was a male chauvinist and interrupted the rifling of my desk long enough to pick me up, slap me briskly on the cheeks and ask, "have you ever heard of the Maltese Turkey Buzzard?'

I told her I hadn't but said I liked the symbolism. "What would you charge to help me find it?" she asked in a voice like an overheated radiator when you pour cold water on it. I felt like a melting ice cream cone. "For you I'd do it for $25 a day and expenses," I gasped like an actor on television in a cold-remedy commercial, "but for anybody else it would be $75 an hour plus time and a half for beatings.

"Just as I thought," she hissed. "Not only a sexist, but a tax swindler!" She opened her coat wide, revealing a badge that said U. S. Internal Revenue Service

I rang for Daisy. "Get me my lawyers," I told her. "Get me my press agent and my ghost writer. Get me my auditor and my business manager.' Daisy said she had another idea. 'Shoot,'' I told her. "Let me get you a private detective," she said.

Hunters-watch your smokes and warming fires!

The deadliest thing about cancer is the way people pretend it's not there.

Two-thirds of all cancers appear on the surface of your body or close enough to be detected by the doctor. Which means that in many instances the presence of cancer is distinctly noticeable.

Many people think that if they shut their eyes to it, the trouble will go away. The truth is: if you act fast, the cancer may be highly curable; if you delay, it will surely kill you. And there are frightening statistics to prove it.

Over thirty thousand American women die each year of breast cancer—the leading cause of cancer deaths among women. And one out of every 17 women will have it in her lifetime. More than 46,000 men and women will die this year from colon and rectal cancer. (Yet regular annual checkups would reveal three-fourths of these early enough to be cured.) Cancer of the uterus costs 13,000 female lives. Leukemia kills about 15,000 people, 2,000 of whom are children. Depressingly, the statistics are endless.

So what can you do to guard against cancer? As well as seeing your doctor regularly, you've got to keep a look out for certain warning signs: unusual bleeding or discharge; a lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere; a sore that does not heal;

a change in bowel or bladder habits; hoarseness or a nagging cough; indigestion or difficulty in swallowing; an obvious change in a wart or mole.

If you notice any one of these warning symptoms, you should see your doctor immediately. Some cancers, however, are symptomless. A thorough physical examination every year is the only way to detect these.

You can't prevent most cancers; but in many cases you can cure it through surgery, chromotherapy or by some form of radiation treatment. Nearly one and a half million Americans alive today can testify to that. But to beat cancer, you've got to find it fast and start the treatment fast. That means regular checkups by your doctor.

The American Cancer Society reports that at least 635,000 people in this country will get cancer this year. About half these lives could be saved by early diagnosis and prompt treatment. But not by pretending that cancer doesn't exist.

If the Shoe Fits... James R. Valone

What's so great about a new pair of shoes? Big deal. They're the lowest things you own (get it?). So why is it when you were a kid and got a new pair of shoes, you were "tickled pink". Even a simple pair of sneakers made you so happy, you'd run fast and "try 'em out". And today salesmen tell us that a new pair of shoes puts a sparkle in their eyes and new life in their steps. When they get scuffed, they feel low. When they get a shine they feel great. (Remember all the songs about the shoe shine boys who make folks happy?) Yes, there's something magic about a nice

New Cleaning Process Available In Area

An entirely new concept in carpet and rug cleaning has been introduced in Warren and surrounding areas by Custom Floors and Furniture Steam-Way located at 72 N. State St.

N. Warren. Pa new cleaning process can do for your furnishings it is necessary to understand the nature of soiling, and of soil removal.

Essentially, there are two types of soil; the loose gritty soil that is tracked in from the outside, and "atmospheric" soil that floats in the air, and comes from cooking, exhausts, chimneys and other related sources. Because the latter is a soil that contains grease and oils, it clings tightly to the carpet fiber. It cannot be removed by normal vacuuming, so it remains to build up over a period of time and gradually will cause a "dull lifeless appearance." It also has a deteriorating effect on the dyes and fibers, subtracting years of life and beauty from your furnishings.

Machine scrubbing, either with the "do it yourself" equipment or heavier commercial machines merely loosens the soil and drives it deeper into the carpet pile, making it more difficult to

The surface may appear clean after these treatments. but the dirt and detergent are still there at the base of the back to the surface, making it appear that carpets resoil more rapidly after cleaning, when actually the soil was never

What does actually make carpets resoil more rapidly after cleaning is the waxy and oily residue left by some shampoos. A simple test is to pour a small amount of such solution mixed to the manufacturer's recom mendations in a saucer and allow it to stand overnight. If it dries to a crisp powder, it will not cause resoiling, but if it has a waxy-oily feeling, it will cause resoiling to your furnishings. The new process utilizes a revolutionary new principle. Specially formulated cleaning agents are mixed in water specifically for the type of fiber in the carpet that is to be cleaned, whether it be fine wool. Orientals, or any of the variations of man-made fibers found in most carpets on the market today

The mixture is converted into saturated steam, and under pressure is forced deep into the carpet pile where it literally explodes the soil from the surface of the fibers.

This dirt-laden mixture is held in suspension and immediately picked up by a vacuum pump which deposits it into a waste tank-not at the base of your carpets. Cleaning is from the bottom up; not the top down

With the use of the other attachments, "mini heads", a trained operator can clean carpeted stairways and other hard to reach places.

Happiness is cooking with gas... and not having to clean the oven. Creative cooking is fun when you have a range that coop erates with you. And that's one of the beauties of a clean, modern gas range. Gas lets you prepare a meal, that looks like you slaved over it . . . but you don't have to slave over it. About all you have to do nowadays is just turn it on. And it does that instantly. Then all the automatic cooking controls let you do something else. And you don't even have to clean the oven anymore . . . with automatic

In short, a modern gas range is for people who love to cook . . . and for people who hate to cook. But mostly, for people who like to eat.

Oh yeh?

The 34-year-old Robinson, most valuable player of last year's Series, is doing it again. He rapped three hits, drove in three runs, scored twice, made a sensational fielding play and tied a World Series record as the Orioles beat Pittsburgh Monday 11-3 in the second game of the 1971 baseball classic.

"I still don't think I can ever equal last year," said Robinson. "Maybe I can do it in an individual game like today, but I've been playing since 1955 and never put it together like I did against Cincinnati."

The 6-foot-1 Robinson, who operates a sporting goods store and a restaurant in Baltimore, laughed hard when told he tied a record held by Babe Ruth and Lou Brock.

"Babe Ruth? You got to be kidding," said Robinson. "What record of Babe Ruth's did I

Only Ruth and Brock had ever reached base five times in a nine inning series game before Monday. Robinson did it with three singles and a pair of walks. Ruth had a home run and four walks in the 1926 Series, and Brock four singles and a walk in 1967.

Pittsburgh Bases Hopes On Steve Blass Today

more's blase Mike Cuellar and Pittsburgh's nervous Steve Blass, the opposing pitchers for Tuesday's third World Series game, are a contrast in pitching and life styles.

Cuellar, the Orioles' lefthanded ace, attributes his 20game winning success to a screwball and relaxed, confident attitude.

Blass, a bespectacled righthander who relies on a basic fastball-and-curve repertoire, says he cares so much about the Series that "I won't sleep

"I'm nervous all right," said Blass, "I get caught up in all the excitement of a World Series. Maybe I'll relax once I get on the mound Tuesday in Pittsburgh. But that's just a conditioned reflex from pitching.' This series, Blass' first, "has their hitters is when I've seen

The No. 2 starter on the team most of the year behind Dock Ellis, Blass said he wasn't disappointed because he didn't start the second game Monday in Baltimore.

"I just want to start one World Series game, I don't care which one," said the tall, slim right-hander, who was hit hard his last two times out against the San Francisco Giants in the National League playoffs.

Blass, unlike Cuellar, is unfamiliar with the opposing lineup. Cuellar pitched several years in the National League and knows many of the Pittsburgh hitters.

"I've never seen the Orioles, so I really can't compare them to any club I've faced in the National League," said Blass. "The only time I've watched

"I've watched our team from the dugout—then bounced back to the dressing room to observe the Oriole hitters on television. I guess I'll know what they're like after the game Tuesday.'

Cuellar, however, thinks he'll have a definite edge because of his familiarity with such hitters as Roberto Clemente, Willie Stargell and Manny Sanguillen.

"Yes. I know their style." said Cuellar; "and that's pretty good for me, isn't it?"

But World Series or no, the happy-go-lucky Baltimore ace will pitch in his accustomed, assured style.

Bosox-Brewers In Shocking Deal

BALTIMORE (AP) — The quired pitchers Marty Pattin me another year. I can't believe Boston Red Sox and Milwaukee Brewers completed a mammoth 10-player trade late Sunday night that triggered a charge by pitcher Ken Brett that the Red Sox have "a lack of communication between front office and ball players and the manager and ball players.

The trade by the Red Sox was the second major deal in two vears made at the time of the team that won the 1967 American League pennant.

Last year at this time the Red Sox traded Billy's brother Tony to California along with catcher Jerry Moses and pitcher Ray Jarvis for pitcher Ken Tatum, outfielder Jarvis Tatum and second baseman Doug Griffin.

With Tony Conligiaro, Scott and Lonborg gone, the major stars left from Boston's 1967 pennant winning team are outfielders Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith and third baseman Rico Petrocelli.

Because of the trading of Scott, Kasko may now be forced to switch Yastrzemski to first Sources close to the Red Sox said the key to the trade for the club was the acquisition of Pattin and the unloading of Billy Conligiaro because of his verbal blast at Yastrzemski for running the club.

According to the same sources, the club had split into two factions —one with Billy Conligiaro, Scott and Petrocelli and the other with Yastrzemski, Smith and Lahoud.

Ironically, Billy Conligiaro and Lahoud both now are on the World Series breaking up the Brewers. Petrocelli also is rumored to be headed away from the Red Sox.

In commenting on the trade, Kasko pointed out that "Pattin was the key man. When (general manager Dick) O'Connell came to me and asked what I needed, I said an established starting pitcher.'

O's (Yawn!) Take Victory In Stride

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles took their 11-3 World Series victory in stride Monday and Earl Weaver made a facetious reference to being a

"In the playoffs, my finger stuck on the long ball button. Today, I pushed the base hit singles button and couldn't get it off.

The reference was to Baltimore's attack of 14 singles, which prompted owner Jerry Hoffberger to ask: "Where's our power?"

'What would you rather have, boss?," pitcher Pete Richert asked. "Two taters (homers) and a loss?"

About the only yelling after the game referred to Tuesday's clash. "Tomorrow's the big one," several players called out, and others offered encouragement to Mike Cuellar, the third game starter.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson, as all other Orioles, declined to predict a four-game sweep and suggested that Steve Blass, Pittsburgh's starter Tuesday, "is probably their best pitcher."

"I'd be crazy to say we'd win four straight," first baseman Boog Powell said. "We scored 11 runs today, not tomorrow. We can't take anything for granted.'

The Orioles have won 318 regular season games the past three seasons, and take a 16game winning streak into Tuesday's game. They reached 17 straight last year before losing the fourth game of the World

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) -Randy Vataha, a rookie wide receiver with the New England Patriots, looks up to college batterymate Jim Plunkett in more ways than one.

"He's great, just unbelievable." Vataha said in saluting his buddy after Plunkett led the New England Patriots to a 20-0 National Football League victory over the New York Jets Sunday in a driving rain storm.

Plunkett, the Heisman Trophy winner from Stanford, fired touchdown passes to Vataha and Ron Sellers in the third period and then sent Jim Nance on a 50-yard scoring jaunt as the Patriots defeated the Jets for the first time since 1965. Vataha, Plunkett's favorite target at Stanford, was drafted in the 17th round by the Los Angeles Rams. Considered two small at a listed 5-feet-10 and 180 pounds, the Patriots picked him up on waivers to give their rookie quarterback some help. Close buddies off the field, Plunkett and Vataha combined their old collegiate skills to break a scoreless standoff against the Jets.

Starting at his 25, Plunkett passed to Sellers for 49 yards and then turned to Vataha. A Plunkett to Vataha pass went 11 yards for a first down at the 15, and the next aerial was good for the touchdown.

"This is my third year with Jim and he still amazes me." Vataha said. "I didn't run my sideline routes that good today, but the ball was there every time. He threaded the old needle. What makes his passing even more remarkable were the conditions. The wind and rain were so bad I couldn't even throw the ball in pregame

"He just gets better every game," Coach John Mazur said in praising Plunkett, who completed 12 passes while New York managed to hit on only

"I was a little discouraged after we lost to Baltimore last week, but I could see things, the linebackers and defensive backs, better against the Jets," Plunkett said. "However, these were by far the worst conditions I've ever played in. Even taking the snap was tough. The ball kept sliding up my forearm and I even had to baby my passessomething a quarterback never should do.

Despite the success of Vataha and Plunkett, the Patriots awarded game balls to Nance, running back Carl Garrett and linebacker Steve Kiner.

Nance became the 15th player in NHL history to surpass 5,-000 yards in rushing, hiking his sixyear total to 5,033 with 93 in 20 carries. Garrett carried 15 times for 111 yards and caught two passes for another 45, while Kiner led a hard-nosed defense.

Ranger Coach Emil Francis Says That He's 'Conceding Nothing'

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Emil Francis summed up the outlook for his New York Rangers succinctly, but with a smile: "We're not conceding anybody nothin'," he said, "Nothin'."

Francis has every right to feel the way he does-and every right to smile. The Rangers gained a 4-4 tie with the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens in their season opener at Montreal Saturday, then defeated Boston 4-1 Sunday as the Bruins opened defense of their East Division championship.

Francis, a wisp of a man who has coached the Rangers the last five seasons without missing the playoffs, says he is playing each game as it comes, and is not worrying about preseason prognosticators who have picked the Rangers to finish behind the Bruins and Canadiens in the East Division.

"The polls have been wrong before," he said. "The important thing now is to win enough games to get into the playoffs.

Probably the key factor in Sunday's victory was the play of goalie Ed Giacomin, who shared in the Vezina Trophy last season as the league's top goaltender. Giacomin had 18 saves in the first period against the Bruins, including about a half dozen that could be described as either spectacular or fantastic, or both.

Houston May Deal Morgan

BALTIMORE (AP) - The Philadelphia Phillies and Houston Astros are close to a deal which would send Astros' second baseman Joe Morgan to the Phillies for three players, including power hitter Deron Johnson, The Associated Press learned Monday.

The Phillies would trade Johnson, who hit .265 with 34 homers and 95 runs batted in, second baseman Denny Doyle and southpaw reliever Joe Hoerner to Houston for Morgan, who stole 39 bases and batted .254 last season.

The holdup in the deal is Houston's lukewarm feeling about Doyle, who hit .231 for the Phillies in 95 games.

Phillies' General Manager John Quinn wouldn't confirm that Doyle was the problem, but he admitted other names were being tossed around. Quinn declined to disclose any of the players involved.

With Grove with Coudersport.

Silver Creek 34, Eisenhower 6 Silver Creek has a potent football machine-ask Eisenhower. It's not that the Knights were all that bad; Silver Creek was very, very good when it was necessary. Running right at Eisenhower's guards during the first 86-yard drive for a touchdown, the Black Knights simply outhit Eisenhower. By the time the secondary could come up to fill. Sam Allen would have four, five or six yards churned out.

Then when the Knights adjusted in the second quarter, getting some good filling tackles from Greg Manelick and Mike Luvison, Silver Creek found another weakness-the end vacated by the injury to Roger Thelin. Though Dean Ferrie did try manfully at the position. Silver Creek sent blockers at him in waves time and again; he did learn to fight the pressure by the fourth quarter, but the outcome had been decided by then.

And Eisenhower's offense. hampered again by Thelin's absence, didn't come up with a big play when needed all night. Of ten third-down plays the Knights had, they got a first down four times. They needed 98 yards altogether to get first downs on those plays; they got 23. But the reason for that often lav in Ike's second-down attempts, which left the Knights with an average gain of nine yards needed for a first down when third down did come up No team will consistently dig itself out of holes that deep; Ike was no exception.

Vince Lombardi believed in execution of plays as the key to success; Saturday night, the Knights just didn't execute

The Browns are using the computer in studying their opponents' defenses. Skorich said every defense play from the Steeler game films being studied was coded and fed into the computer.

"We wanted to find out what they do in first and 10 on their side of the field ... or first and 10 going into score ... or what is their blitz down.' The coach noted that there was nothing new in making such

By SYLVIA PORTER This coming Friday-precisely one month after the Nixon administration's startling advice to the American public to go ahead and use phosphate detergents because the substitutes could be worse-will be the deadline for comments by in-5 dustry, private citizens, consumer representatives and others on a proposed Federal Trade Commission ruling which would require manufacturers to list prominently on detergent packages this

"Each recommended use level of this product contains X grams of phosphorous. which contributes to water pollution. Do not use in excess. In soft water areas, use of phosphates is not necessary

The FTC will weigh the facts and opinions presented along with other evidence it collected at hearings last April and June. It will then issue a final decision--before the end of the year--on whether to require the new detergent labels or to modify the proposed warning or to pursue another course altogether

We in the U.S. are now using 4 billion pounds of detergents a year-20 lbs. for every man, woman and child--although we certainly have been warned repeatedly about the threat of phosphates to our rivers, lakes and streams. Yet, environment-conscious though you may be. you have almost no way to wield your enormous buying power to help curb water pollution. As FTC lawyer Wayne Cooper puts it. "You want to buy products that won't pollute." but without the type of information that the new proposal would require on labels, you "can't make a

A strict new system of labeling--along the lines proposed by the FTC--would give you crucial information on the phosphate content of soap products, so you could 'vote' with your spending dollars for the products that are least harmful, or harmless. A new system would give you the data to make meaningful comparisons until the detergent manufacturers have had time to come up with safe substitutes or until waste treatment plants have been built to cope with phosphates or until the whole issue of relative harm has been satisfactorily settled

Social Cost 'Labeling' Seen

One point emerges clearly--and businessmen the nation over will ignore the point at their own peril

The cry for "labeling" of the social costs of all types of products and services we use is becoming even louder. More and more of you are concerned not only with what a product can contribute to your own comfort but also with what it can contribute--good or bad--to your nation's

This social cost labeling goes far beyond obvious pollution. For instance, if you knew more about the life expectancy of a toaster or an automobile or a stove or a TV set, might you not favor a longer-life product-even at higher cost-over the product which unexpectedly falls into hopeless disrepair? And, of course, you would be pleased by the thought that you were helping to reduce the volume of metallic trash in our land.

Or, if you knew more about the environmental dangers of toxic drain cleaners, paint and stain removers, oven cleaners and the like, would you not take elementary precautions about adding them eventually to our ground water

And what about basic information on the ingredients of the products in our medicine cabinets and on our dressing tables? Could any of them poison even a septic tank?

And what about the excellent suggestion that labels on products made of materials that can be recycled carry the addresses of recycling facilities?

Or what about a requirement that labels on paper containers, other paper products and publications tell whether or not the paper used has been recycled? The Federal government has begun requiring such information on some of the paper products it buys. Why not extend this requirement to other recyclable products?

This is only a sampling of exceedingly mild suggestions for social cost labeling Some of the proposals made seriously by consumer groups would truly terrify profit-conscious business leaders if they knew about them--and they should indeed know about them.

The estimated cost of cleaning up our air, water and garbage just within the next half decade is more than $100 billion. But the business community working with us, the customers, could slash that $100 billion price tag in advance by devising realistic signals which will alert us to unnecessary garbage, extra water and air pollutants. What those crying for social cost labeling are asking for is merely a chance to choose not to make pollution even worse

Sgt. Kenneth J. Weaver, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. James Weaver of 103 Sixth ave. and son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald J. Weaver of Texas City, Texas, has been named one of the top 15 percent in his Air Force specialty. He will receive a Superior Performance pay bonus for six months as a result of his selection.

Sgt. Weaver, an electrician currently serving on Hon Tre Island, Vietnam with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces, was chosen for his leadership, conduct, technical skills and duty performance in competition with all other airmen in his grade and specialty

DANGEROUS TUBES

AKRON, Ohio (AP) Floating lazily off the beach in an inner tube may sound like the ultimate in cool, relaxing summer enjoyment, but the largest manufacturer of inner tubes and tires warns that tubes should not be a substitute for flotation gear.

Water equipment is the most popular off-the-job use for inner tubes, but they should never take the place of approved life jackets, ski belts or ski vests.

Pass Pass Pass Opening lead: Jack of 🐥 Altho North's abrupt leap to six spades may appear to be slightly aggres-≥ sive, his partner must be charged with the prime responsibility for the deficit incurred on the deal. In retrospect, it might be observed, that South was guilty of color blindness for suffering a

The opening bid of two no trump was taken from the book, inasmuch as South holds the required 22 points. North's three club response is the conventional response. requesting the opening bidder to show a four card major. When South obliged by bidding three spades, North might have been better advised to merely invite a slam by jumping beyond game to five spades. His hand is worth 10 points in support. As it turned out, partner held appropriate values and a better perspective as declarer would have uncovered a successful result.

West opened the jack of clubs, the queen was played from dummy, East covered with the king and declarer won the trick with the ace. The queen of spades was led and when West followed with the seven. South played the deuce from dummy. East was in with the king and hastened to return a club to West's nine for the setting

It appears that declarer was unlucky in finding both black kings unfavorably placed. Perhaps he was, but the fate of the contract did not actually hinge on the location of either of these cards. The slam, in fact depends merely on finding East with the king of diamonds

When West follows suit with the seven of spades at trick two, it is suggested that South refuse the finesse. Suppose that he goes up with the ace from dummy and then puts thru the jack of diamonds. Whether or not East covers, declarer can cash three fast tricks in that suit. On the third round, the deuce of clubs is discarded from dummy. Declarer's small club can be ruffed, subsequently, in dummy and all he loses on the deal, is the king of spades.

It may be observed, in passing, that even had the spade finesse succeeded. South would still have had to fall back on another finesse in diamonds. If West turns up with the king of that suit. he may be expected to cash a high club to defeat the slam. South simply had his eyes on the wrong suit.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR TUESDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1971.

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—A generous Mars now stimulates your initiative and ambitions. Gains indicated through new enterprises, properly handled, dealings with superiors, others in authority. TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Venus, favorable, now promises increasing gains for you, too. But some minor situations may have to be ironed out before you go ahead with long-range projects. GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—Dig in with all your skills to make this day very worthwhile. Keep "first" interests first, not mixing duties with pleasures injudiciously. Accept changes philosophically. CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—You may encounter what seems to be undue opposition. Take whatever steps are necessary to overcome it, but do not mistake serious inquiry or discussion for hostility. LEO (July 24 to August 23)—This should be a most profitable day for those who make the best use of their talents and who emphasize amiability in all contacts. VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—A better day than you may suppose at first, but your cooperation will be needed if you would win its benefits. Some pleasant news

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Best results will accrue from working with those who have know-how and inspiration to offer. You should make fine progress in all

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—If things don't seem to be going "as usual," ask questions. Some changes may have been made, some new procedures initiated of which you are not—but should be—aware. SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Try to

How to Keep Well

MASKED THYROID DISEASE

(c) 1971 by The Chicago Tribune When the thyroid gland becomes overactive, it produces large amounts of thyroxine. The metabolic effect on the body can be likened to turning up a thermostat in a room. The individual becomes nervous, excitable and alert, with staring bright eyes. His skin becomes warm and moist, and he may go without a coat even tho it is cold outdoors.

A fine tremor of the hands and tongue develops. The heart is usually "fired up" and beats rapidly and more forcefully. Now and then the beat becomes irregular and dropsy ensues. The victim has a marvelous appetite but loses weight because the food is burned up too rapidly.

Tests such as the protein bound iodine (PBI) are positive and radioiodine is given to suppress the gland's activity. Antithyroid drugs may be given as a supplement. In children the gland usually is removed because some doctors fear that radioiodine may cause cancer of the thyroid several decades later. This has never occurred. however, and our fears may be unfounded.

Not everyone with an overactive thyroid (thyrotoxicosis) develops these symptoms. The excessive thyroxine may act mainly on one particular system, such as the cardiovascular or gastrointestinal system. But the most unusual of the hidden or masked types is apathetic thyrotoxicosis

Most of the victims are middle-aged or elderly women who develop symptoms that are opposite of those described previously. They become slow mentally, lethargic, listless and depressed. The skin is dry, cool and wrinkled; the victim looks old, haggard and dull-eyed. There is severe muscle wasting with weight loss and the pulse is moderately increased even tho the heart is

Unless the apathy is recognized as a thyroid disorder.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)-Do not scatter energies and you will be able to do a dandy job with whatever is expected of you. Better-than-average

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Uranus, favorable, will help you to capitalize on your ideas instead of keeping them in the thought stage. An artistic touch, an efficient approach will pay off.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—A good day for making necessary changes; also for investigating the curious or unusual—which always interests the Piscean. Original ideas stimulated.

YOU BORN TODAY are unusually adept mentally, have the ability to overcome difficulties with seeming ease and, in all situations, come through with flying colors. Your courage, fair-mindedness and artistic ability are outstanding. Because of their fine sense of balance, perception and general understanding of "rightness," Librans make excellent judges and arbitrators; could also succeed as physicians, painters, musicians or in any one of the performing arts. RUNNING FAST

B. F. writes: I'm 13 years old, 5 feet 4 inches tall, and weigh 144 pounds. I am a pretty good runner and would like to run faster but can't. Do you think my weight is holding me back? REPLY

Yes, but your age and height are more likely causes. With longer legs and training, you will be able to travel farther and faster. Speed also is a native quality with which only a few of us are blessed. FACE IS TOO THIN

M. M. writes: Is there any way for a person to fatten up the face? Mine seems to be getting thinner all the time. and I'm not dieting. Can this problem be solved? REPLY

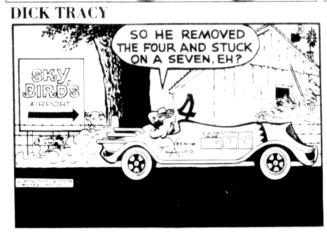

The face tends to get thinner with loss of weight and the facial muscles atrophy with age. Very little can be done to increase the size of the face without increasing the size of the body. Plastic surgery may be the answer to your problem.
